Kingston, Jamaica – Jemere Morgan, nephew of the late Peter 'Peetah' Morgan, has stepped into the spotlight as the new frontman for the iconic reggae group, Morgan Heritage. Following in the footsteps of his legendary uncle, Jemere is poised to continue the legacy of one of Jamaica's most beloved musical families.

With his smooth vocals and undeniable stage presence, Jemere is no stranger to the spotlight. As a recording artiste in his own right, he has already made waves in the music industry with hits like "Neighbourhood Girl" and "Try Jah Love". Now, he is ready to take his career to new heights as the lead singer of Morgan Heritage.

"It's an honor to carry on the Morgan name and represent our family's musical heritage," said Jemere in a recent interview. "My uncle Peetah was a mentor and inspiration to me, and I am committed to upholding the standards of excellence that he set."

Morgan Heritage, known for their infectious blend of reggae, dancehall, and roots music, has been a fixture on the international music scene for over two decades. With hits like "Don't Haffi Dread" and "Down by the River", they have amassed a loyal fanbase around the globe and have won numerous awards, including a Grammy for Best Reggae Album.

The addition of Jemere as lead singer brings a fresh energy to the group, while still staying true to their signature sound. Fans can expect new music and electrifying live performances as Morgan Heritage continues to spread positive vibes and uplift audiences worldwide.

"We are thrilled to have Jemere join us as the new lead singer," said Gramps Morgan, founding member of Morgan Heritage and the father of Jemere. "He brings a unique voice and perspective to the group, and we can't wait to create magic together on stage and in the studio."
