BY RAS BANAMUNGU

Julian Ricardo Marley, known by his stage name "JuJu," has carved his own path in the music industry, following in the footsteps of his legendary father, Bob Marley. Born on June 4, 1975, in London, United Kingdom, Julian is a British-Jamaican reggae musician, songwriter, producer, and humanitarian. He is the son of the iconic reggae music legend Bob Marley and Lucy Ponder.

Julian Marley's musical journey began at an early age, influenced by the rich reggae heritage of his family. His father, Bob Marley, is a household name in the world of reggae music, and Julian's decision to pursue a career in music was both a tribute to his father's legacy and a testament to his own passion for the genre.

Over the years, Julian has established himself as a prominent figure in the reggae scene. He has released several albums, including "Awake" in 2009, "As I Am" in 2019, and more. His music is characterized by the distinctive reggae sound that his family is known for, and he has garnered a dedicated fan base around the world.
