Rwandan rapper and prominent female artist, Oda Paccy, is making waves once again in the music industry after a two-year hiatus. Known for her dynamic presence and powerful lyrical prowess, Paccy has announced her return with a renewed energy and a commitment to creating impactful music.

Born Uzamberumwana Pacifique on March 6, 1990, in Gasabo, Kigali, Oda Paccy quickly rose to prominence in the Rwandan music scene with her distinctive style and thought-provoking lyrics. With hits like "Mbese Nzapfa" and "Miss President," she cemented her position as one of Rwanda's most talented rappers.

During her time away from the spotlight, Paccy remained active in various endeavors, including her role as the Executive Director of the VOICE OF WOMEN Organization (VOW), where she advocated for mental health awareness and women's empowerment. However, her passion for music never waned, and fans eagerly awaited her return to the studio.

Paccy's comeback has been met with excitement and anticipation from fans and industry insiders alike. With her latest single, "Ngicyo," she once again demonstrates her ability to blend catchy melodies with socially conscious lyrics, tackling themes of love, resilience, and personal growth.
